Competition aims

Development aims, in conjunction with British Judo

- The event is aimed at both experienced and inexperienced competitors so that they can compete in a safe and fun environment where winning is not the main priority. The overarching aims are to boost participation in the sport, at your school classes, at the IAPS event itself and more broadly within British Judo.
 1. To improve participation in judo within the schools attending.
 2. To boost participation numbers of girls practicing judo.
 3. To create a judo event that is a fantastic advert for judo and encourages and inspires children to want to do more judo, and perhaps a pathway into a local club
 4. For the event to be an outstanding experience for players, parents and coaches alike. To be a beacon of good practice and an opportunity for British Judo to look to this event as an example of what a development event should entail.
 5. For IAPS to be proud of and promote this event within their schools.
